THE REPUBLICANS' VOLUNTEER ARMY

GOP BACKERS HIT THE STREETS IN KEY STATES

Reuters

FAIRFAX, Va. Thousands of Republican volunteers braved scorching temperatures to knock on doors and canvass voters Saturday as the party staged its first "Super Saturday" blitz hoping to energize supporters and rival Democrats' volunteer mobilization.

Republican party officials said volunteers were out in a dozen battleground states expected to see close contests in the Nov. 6 election between President Obama and former Massachusetts Gov. Mitt Romney.

Obama captured all 12 when he won the White House in 2008, aided by armies of enthusiastic supporters who helped generate the highest voter turnout in 40 years.

Romney will need to swing a number of them back to the Republican column to defeat Obama this year. Drumming up voter enthusiasm could be key, especially given polls showing Democrats are more enthusiastic about the 2012 contest than Republicans.

"There's nothing to substitute for face-to-face, eye-to-eye contact," former Virginia Governor George Allen told volunteers in Fairfax, in the Virginia suburbs of Washington.

Allen, also a former U.S. senator, is in a tight race against another former Virginia governor—and close Obama ally—Tim Kaine, to win back his old Senate seat.

A CNN poll this week said 59 percent of registered voters nationwide who describe themselves as Democrats are extremely or very enthusiastic about voting, up from 46 percent in March.

Fifty-one percent of registered voters who say they are Republicans are extremely or very enthusiastic about voting, unchanged since the earlier poll.

A Pew poll released this week found 60 percent of Republicans find the presidential campaign dull, compared with 46 percent of Democrats. But Romney raised more funds than Obama in May and is likely to be ahead of him in June when Romney pulled in more than $100 million.

Does this heat make us fight?

Stephen Markley

✉ redeye@tribune.com

Temperature records have fallen across the country. Multiple states in the West are burning. The entire state of Colorado appears to be on fire. And violent storms knocked out power all over the Midwest and Eastern Seaboard on some of the hottest days of the year.

Yes, I know: Every time I write about global warming, I can hear readers groaning, "Markley, we know you're doing this to pick up chicks. Ladies dig dire warnings about rapidly accumulating greenhouse gases and the runaway feedback effects that are super-heating the planet. Stop using your column to so transparently try to get laid."

Nevertheless, of all the myriad effects of a warming climate, one (of many) that deserves closer study is the connection between longer, hotter summers and urban violence.

The link between particularly warm weather and a rise in violent crime is hotly (boom!) debated. Studies by psychologists such as Ellen Cohn and James Rotton of Florida State University or Iowa State University's Craig Anderson seem to suggest there is a link, but the connection and causality remains controversial.

What I know is that I live in Chicago, and when the summer here cranks up, the headlines turn grim. This record-setting summer has been especially bleak.

Chicago's homicide rate has been worse than what American soldiers face in Afghanistan. A hot, bloody Memorial Day weekend with 40 shootings left 10 people dead, and the Fourth of July saw four killed and 19 wounded in a single day.

I certainly don't mean to discount all the complicated sociological, economic and educational factors that go into producing Chicago's violence, but no one will disagree that for whatever reason—whether people simply go outside more and the potential for conflict grows or whether heat actually predisposes people to acting rashly—it explodes during the summer.

And within the lifetimes of most of the people reading this column, Chicago's summers are going to get much longer, and much, much hotter. Last year, the city told The New York Times it already was attempting to plan for where we're headed: summers like Baton Rouge, La., with as many as 72 days when the temperature breaks 90 degrees, as compared with an average of 15 days during the 20th century.

(One might ask: "Well, what the hell are summers in Baton Rouge going to be like?" The answer: You don't want to think about it.)

The most frustrating element of the climate crisis is that the ways in which it manifests itself like this will seem so easily explained away even as their accumulated effects lead to great economic cost and societal chaos.

Yet we remain dismissive of and annoyed by the constant nagging (of people like me) that this is real, that it's more serious than just about any other issue of the day, and that our political, educational, corporate and media institutions are absolutely failing us in response to this imminent and unique threat. That we are failing ourselves by covering our ears and closing our eyes.

All right! Another successful panty-dropping climate column for the ladies of Chicago! Please contact me via RedEye, and feel free to send topless pics—it is hot out.

OPRAH AND M-RAHM ARE THERE. CHECK OUT CHICAGO'S SWANKY, MEMBERS-ONLY SOCIAL SCENE

By Tracy Swartz | REDEYE

Forget the velvet rope—and you're not going to see a bouncer at some of Chicago's most exclusive clubs.

Take the Metropolitan Club in Willis Tower, for example. The club, which bills itself as the "most inclusive place for Chicago leaders to gather" and boasts wine tastings and celebrity chef dinners (a sapphire necklace was given away as a prize at a recent dinner), is invitation-only. You can't get in without a recommendation from another member.

Consider the process at University Club of Chicago more rigorous. The Loop club, which has a dress code, requires three letters of recommendation from existing members and a four-year college degree. Potential members then have their candidacy posted in the lobby for two weeks so other members can examine it.

This clique of elite clubs—which lure members with their pools, private dining rooms and networking events—will have to make room for some new (blue)blood. The Soho House, a Manhattan-based private club popularized on "Sex and the City," announced in May it will open an outpost in the West Loop in spring 2014.

The Chicago club, which is set to have a rooftop bar, pool and salon for blowouts, is the only U.S. location announced in an expansion that includes Barcelona, Istanbul, Mumbai and Toronto. Its entré into Chicago shows that despite the economic downturn, there's still a market for prestigious places for Chicago's 1 percent to eat, work and play.

"I think Chicago is a large city and can handle anything," said Nathan Aydelott, spokesman for the East Bank Club, a West Loop fitness center that has boasted President Obama and Oprah Winfrey as members.

But many Chicagoans may not be willing to fork over the price of admission at the East Bank Club and other chichi spots. The East Bank Club, which features tennis courts, a car wash and on-site dry cleaning, charges a $500 initiation fee and monthly dues of $175.

The Metropolitan Club doesn't publish its price list but said membership for its young executives group for Chicagoans under 35 starts at $105 per month. The club's youngest member is 19, membership director Jamie Campos said.

"Our membership is extremely diverse," Campos said. "Different people join the club for different reasons. A good portion of our members join to use it as an office away from the office."

For some, an all-access pass to these clubs is worth the cost.

When Alex Nelson, 28, moved to River North two years ago from D.C., he needed a place to work out. He said he got more Though Nelson was leery of the cost, the longtime runner was intrigued by the club's quarter-mile indoor track. Since joining, he's even had a brush with celebrity—he said Oprah did sit-ups next to him last year.

But it isn't the potential to see the Queen of All Media that keeps Nelson coming back four to six times a week to work out and patronize the rooftop bar.

Less Taste, same security

Even without the Fourth of July overlap, police plan heavy presence

Chicago Tribune

The Taste of Chicago kicks off Wednesday and wraps up Sunday—making the event five days shorter than in years past. Although the Taste is cut in half, Chicago Police Superintendent Garry McCarthy said Sunday that security plans for the event remain similar to last year.

Police presence is planned for inside and outside the event, McCarthy said, with undercover and uniformed officers working together to control crowds. Other than a few small tweaks and adjustments to planning, McCarthy said the enforcement plan remains the same.

Limited entry points and coordination between Chicago Police and private security also will contribute to event safety, he said.

"We expect a fun and family event as we had last year, and we're going to devote appropriate manpower and resources to make sure that happens," McCarthy said. "Last year we had a great event and our recommendation is anyone with an agenda for trouble should not come. They should stay home."

The Taste has seen bouts of violence in the past—especially when crowds flood the city for holiday fireworks displays. In 2008, one person was killed and three injured during a Fourth of July shooting in the Loop only blocks from the event. As a reaction, police beefed up presence in the years that followed and saw a drop in arrests at the Fourth celebration.

Andrew Sisto expects to sling less Italian fare to smaller crowds at this year's Taste. But scheduling the famous food festival after the Fourth of July could make the normally jam-packed event safer for all, the Tuscany Cafe worker said as he set up the restaurant's outdoor kitchen Sunday.

"People usually take off the whole week for the Fourth, so I think we're going to see a decrease in attendance," Sisto said. "It's both good and bad. It gives police an easier job, but lowers numbers for us."

150 people killed in massive Russian flood

4 GELENDZHIK, Russia Russian President Vladimir Putin ordered investigators to find out whether local officials could have done more to prevent floods killing 150 people in southern Russia after flying to the region to handle the first big disaster of his new presidency.

Putin, who was criticized for his slow reaction to disasters earlier in his career, has promised money for new homes for victims of the worst flooding in decades in Krasnodar, a prosperous region with thriving agriculture and tourism.

He declared Monday a day of mourning for the dead, most of whom drowned. Many were elderly people caught unawares as they slept when water swept through their homes after two months' average rainfall fell in a night. The rains dumped as much as 11 inches of water on parts of the Krasnodar region overnight, the BBC reports.

"I have asked the leadership of the [federal] Investigative Committee to come down," Putin said late Saturday during a meeting with officials in Krymsk, the worst-hit town.

"The Investigative Committee will check the actions of all the authorities—how notice was given, how it could have been given, how it should have been given and who acted in what way."

Police said survivors climbed into trees and onto roofs to stay above the waters, which flooded entire ground floors of some buildings and created driving torrents in some streets.

Almost 30,000 homes were also without electricity and gas in a region that is Russia's traditional "bread basket," emergency officials said.

A string of roadside bombs and clashes in southern Afghanistan killed at least 24 Afghan civilians and police Sunday, officials said, in one of the deadliest days of violence in the country for weeks.

Cure me maybe?

It's no joke—Sox's Hudson turned to pop song for help

By Matt Lindner

FOR REDEYE

Carly Rae Jepsen's catchy chart-topper, "Call Me Maybe," has been known to turn many a frown upside down with its bubbly beat and captivating chorus.

But could it cure White Sox infielder Orlando Hudson's woes at the plate?

"Have you been seeing me getting on base?" he asked following Saturday's game, in which he went 0-for-2 with a strikeout. I responded that I have not.

"OK then," he said.

Hudson began using the sugary sweet pop ditty as his at-bat walk-up music at U.S. Cellular Field on June 22 against Milwaukee.

"It's a catchy song. It's a great song," he said.

While Hudson's been solid in the field since joining the Sox, his bat may as well have been a giant macaroni noodle over that time. Prior to switching his at-bat music to "Call Me Maybe," he was hitting an anemic .192 (15-for-78) and figured things couldn't get much worse.

"I'm just trying to get myself going at the plate. I can't find nothing else, so I tried 'Call Me Maybe' to see if that'll work for a little while," he said, shrugging.

He was wrong.

In six games since, Hudson has collected two hits in 19 at-bats, lowering his average to .105. He's also been supplanted as the team's starting third baseman by recent acquisition Kevin Youkilis, meaning his at-bats will be even more sporadic.

But when you do see Hudson walking to the plate from now on, it won't be to "Call Me Maybe." He's changing it up, and he hasn't ruled out another song by Jepsen.

So what's it gonna be?

"Can't tell," he said coyly before leaving the clubhouse.

The official Home Run Derby is Monday, but with the White Sox's Adam Dunn and Paul Konerko and the Cubs' Bryan LaHair suiting up, there could be deep drives aplenty. Keep an eye out for the Sox's Chris Sale and Jake Peavy and the Cubs' Starlin Castro as well.

TEXT 5

- 1 Make a prediction for the Home Run Derby.

A rule change that breaks ties with a whipped cream-eating contest puts Prince Fielder in the driver's seat.

Some awkward kids are going to be chasing baseballs around like Labradors.

Just like Adam Dunn, I can't decide.

Chris Berman will yell the word "back" a minimum of eleventy billion times.

Won't be as good as Chicago "homer" derby. Youk vs Rizzo. Make it happen. Bearssssss!

- 2 Why does Carlos Marmol walk so many hitters?

Because he's not some mindless conformist who's gonna play by your rules, strike zone!

He's all about throwing up L's for those hitters.

He wants them to be heart healthy, unlike Cubs fans, whom he wants to give a heart attack.

It's a mystery, like the Bermuda Triangle, high-waisted pants and the whereabouts of Katie Holmes' soul.

Because he's too busy DRIVING Cubs fans crazy.

- 3 Ray Allen signed with the Miami Heat. Discuss.

Was Robert Horry not available?

Like so many old men before him, he's moving to Florida to live out the rest of his life.

Boston fans have been surprisingly calm about this, like your ex-girlfriend before she burns all your comic books.

Like single women joining match.com, he's willing to put pride aside to get that ring.

He went MIA on BOS, that SOB!

- 4 Why is Kobe Bryant so confident the Bulls can contend next season?

Because he's so, um, compassionate?

No clue. What is his name Kobe Clairvo-yant or something?

He's assuming the Mayan apocalypse will wipe out half the NBA.

He called Miss Cleo and she said it's all in the cards.

He kept reading about the Chicago heat and thought LeBron and Wade play for the Bulls now.

- 5 When Roberto Luongo says he's open to joining the Hawks, you ...

... prepare to take back a lot of awful things you've said about Vancouver. But not the thing about their armpit hair.

... believe it. The Herd and I literally drank 1,000 beers this weekend, so anything is possible.

... should be able to make such an easy joke, but I let this one get by me.

... tell him you don't think Atlanta is looking for a 33-year-old Canadian who's never played hoops.

... I ask, "Isn't he already on the Hawks?" He's been helping them for years.

HOLDING COURT

Before star guard Epiphanny Prince broke her foot June 16, the Chicago Sky were rolling. They've struggled since, no doubt missing her 22.3 points per game. In the meantime, Prince gives RedEye an exclusive look behind the scenes of her rehab.

Week 2: So long, trash bag!

Well here I am still on those crutches and still not thrilled about it, but in the past week I was fortunate to have had my cast removed, and now it's time to really get busy and make sure I am in the best condition possible when I get back on the court.

I now have a "boot" I have to wear and while it's definitely much better than having a cast, it is heavy and takes some coordination to get it on and off. It is great to be able to shower now without having to put my leg in a plastic trash bag, and hopefully in another week I can be rid of the crutches as well.

The fact I can't walk or balance on my foot has not deterred Ann, our strength and conditioning coach, from putting me through tough core and leg workouts every day. I don't know where she came up with some of these drills but OUCH! I have found some muscles I never knew I had!

It has been a challenge to sit on the sideline and watch my teammates play, but I am proud of them for staying focused, and it's been great to see players like Tamera Young, Shay Murphy and Courtney Vandersloot really step up their production and keep us in contention.

You'll be back

Anthony Davis, a Chicago native and the No. 1 pick in last month's NBA draft out of Kentucky, did not make the cut for Team USA. The final roster consists of LeBron James, Kevin Durant, Kobe Bryant, Carmelo Anthony, Chris Paul, Deron Williams, Russell Westbrook, Kevin Love, Tyson Chandler, Blake Griffin, James Harden and Andre Iguodala. That's a tough list to crack, and Davis will have a better shot four years from now when he's the ripe old age of 23. Have patience, Kid.

Back to back to back

Three reasons basketball fans in Chicago were abuzz this weekend:

Welcome back

Multiple sources say Kirk Hinrich will return to the Bulls and sign a two-year, $6 million deal once the NBA free-agent moratorium ends Wednesday. Hinrich, 31, will start at point guard while Derrick Rose rehabilitates from knee surgery and rookie Marquis Teague learns the ropes, then slide to shooting guard to back up Richard Hamilton and play alongside Rose. Of course the real question is, which eyewear is more intimidating: Hamilton's face-mask or Hinrich's goggles?

Hurry back

A video posted on tmz.com reportedly shows Derrick Rose leaving an L.A. nightclub Friday night. This might seem like cause for alarm, but until the Bulls superstar pulls a Plaxico Burress or Adam "Pacman" Jones, we trust Rose is taking his rehab seriously.

New challenge

Ex 'Will & Grace' star hopes TV viewers accept him on 'Perception'

Reuters

Sometimes all it takes to solve a puzzle is a different way of looking at it.

Former "Will & Grace" actor Eric McCormack is hoping audiences will do just that when he returns to TV not as a witty gay lawyer but as an eccentric professor with paranoid schizophrenia. On "Perception," premiering at 9 p.m. Monday on TNT, McCormack plays scruffy neuroscientist Dr. Daniel Pierce, who helps the FBI solve difficult cases with the help of his own multiple voices. He is, after all, a paranoid schizophrenic.

McCormack describes Pierce and the new show as "A Beautiful Mind" meets "Columbo"—a combination of the Oscar-winning movie about a mathematician and the TV detective series.

Arrogant, outspoken and largely closed-off from other people, Pierce is a character who despite having a real job as a university professor can't help solving mysteries, whether it is a crossword puzzle or an unsolved crime.

Proud as he is of "Will & Grace" and its role in re-shaping the cultural landscape in terms of gay acceptance, McCormack, who recently wrapped a run in the Broadway play "The Best Man," says that six years

“I have to show the world there is another side of me. I have to probably not go and play a whole bunch of other gay roles.”

—Eric McCormack, on his future as an actor after it ended, he is hoping audiences will accept him in a new light.

"I have to show the world there is another side of me. I have to probably not go and play a whole bunch of other gay roles," said McCormack, who is straight. "But I am prouder now of 'Will & Grace' than I have ever been. There a lot of guys who write me letters saying, 'I don't know how I would have come out to my parents without that show.'

"... I think what we did little by little, by having middle America watch the show, was as valuable as all the speeches and rhetoric and parades in the world."

Perception
9 p.m. Monday, TNT

Remember "Monk"? Well, replace crime consultant Adrian Monk's OCD with neuroscientist Dr. Daniel Pierce's paranoid schizophrenia and you get an idea of what "Perception" is like. Except it's not as clever. Eric McCormack plays Pierce as a tangle of tics and sometimes forced eccentricities, while Rachael Leigh Cook barely registers as his FBI agent partner and former student. The cases they solve aren't all that compelling, even if you are able to tell the people Pierce imagines from those who are real.

!!!! The Closer
8 p.m. Monday, TNT

Since 2005, dogged LAPD deputy chief Brenda Leigh Johnson (Kyra Sedgwick) has been closing major crime cases, sometimes stretching ethical boundaries so far she faced a federal lawsuit fueled by an informant within her ranks. She's been cleared, but the leak hasn't been plugged, and in the first of the final six episodes, "Hostile Witness," she comes up against the killer who got away, a lawyer and rapist named Phillip Stroh (Billy Burke). She struggles with the restrictions placed on her as well as troubles in her personal life. Fans will struggle with the question of whether, ultimately, Brenda was a good cop or a bad one.

TOP 10 ALBUMS OF 2012 SO FAR

By Matt Pais | REDEYE SOUND BOARD

The top-selling album of 2012 is Adele's "21," an effort that was released way back in January 2011. But don't let that statistic make you question the quality of this year's releases. Here are our Top 10 picks so far.

1. 'Celebration Rock' Japandroids

I've forgiven the Vancouver duo's less-perfect cover of the Gun Club's "For the Love of Ivy" because every other track on "Celebration Rock" is such extraordinary rock that's particularly awesome for summer.

Killer Mike

2. 'R.A.P. Music' Killer Mike

You know those rap albums with a lot of disposable tracks? This isn't one of them. Hard-hitting and relevant, Killer Mike's latest doesn't make you wonder why he wanted to work with El-P. Only if they'll do it again.

3. 'The Idler Wheel ...' Fiona Apple

Fragile as always, Fiona Apple returns after a 7-year album hiatus to nakedly trace the anguish of a mind simultaneously at war with others and itself. Apple makes beautiful music ugly, or maybe the other way around.

4. 'The Plot Against Common Sense' Future of the Left

Though a step down from the tremendous "Travels with Myself and Another," the Welsh rockers' latest still pulses with sharp hooks and lyrics that sound fearlessly clever even after 10 listens.

5. 'Great Ideas in Action' Archie Powell and the Exports

Once again, the Chicagoans teach nearly every other band trying to craft a hit that catchy doesn't have to mean stupid, and topical doesn't have to mean boring. Crank it up, shout along, think about it later.

6. 'Cancer 4 Cure' El-P

Arguably the rapper's most potent and accessible record, "Cancer 4 Cure" couldn't sound more urgent and exciting.

7. 'Beware and Be Grateful' Maps and Atlases

The local band's second full-length record refines experimental tendencies.

8. 'Be Strong' The 2 Bears

A top-notch party record, this electro-pop can turn a condo into a lounge or just someone who doesn't normally go for this sort of thing into a fan.

9. 'Generals' The Mynabirds

No one expected Laura Burhenn's band to follow the lovely, comforting "What We Lose in the Fire We Gain in the Flood" with an angry, tuneful political record.

10. 'Michigan Left' Arkells

ROMANCE PLANET

BY JENNIFER SHEPHERD | READ MORE AT LIPSTICKMYSTIC.COM

Cancer June 22-July 22

You'll be attracted to someone crazy, eccentric and different as Saturn makes it impossible for you to be practical. This person might not be the ideal life partner, but the two of you could still have fun.

Leo July 23-Aug. 22

Mercury is forcing you to clean up some of your recent messes. Maybe your honey has figured out that you've been sleeping with other people, too. Oops.

Virgo Aug. 23-Sept. 22

As Mercury goes retrograde for a few weeks, you need to rest, relax and reconsider. This is a time to reflect on what's been going on before making any major moves.

Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23

You might receive criticism from an unexpected direction, thanks to the moon. Perhaps a close friend will suddenly offer a negative view of your current romantic choices.

Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 21

You'll enjoy taking a trip or a short getaway if you can. Saturn is reminding you that you shouldn't mope around the house. Seek inspiration somewhere. Bring along a sexy friend to keep your spirits up.

Sagittarius Nov. 22-Dec. 21

The moon is creating some sexy times with someone. If you're single, you could find yourself in the middle of a hot flirtation.

If you're in a relationship, you and your partner might discover new levels of passion.

Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 19

The sun is inspiring you to revisit the past. This might not be smart, but you'll do it anyway. You'll look up an ex on Facebook to check out his or her relationship status.

Aquarius Jan. 20-Feb. 18

You're all over the place, thanks to a scattered moon. You're hanging out with a lot of different people but you don't really feel tied to any one person. Meanwhile, there could be several people who think that you're dating them exclusively.

Pisces Feb. 19-March 20

You might need to give your honey an ultimatum if he or she isn't paying attention to your needs. Tell her that no, you don't want to live with her mother. Saturn says speak up.

Aries March 21-April 19

The moon is reminding you that you have some unfinished business in the love department. You want to tell a former flame what you really think of him.

Taurus April 20-May 20

Pluto is reminding you that it's a big world out there. Don't date the same type all the time. Be open to exploring other options.

Gemini May 21-June 21

Venus is increasing your urge to merge. You'll want to spend all your time in the bedroom, possibly with multiple lovers. You're not so worried about trying to have a longtime relationship just now.

Coming soon(er or later) to a theater near you

Los Angeles Times

Four of Hollywood's biggest 2012 movies are on hold until 2013.

Delayed and missing their dates at the box office are the sequel "G.I. Joe: Retaliation," the zombie apocalypse tale "World War Z," the fairy tale adaptation "Jack the Giant Killer" and the samurai epic "47 Ronin."

Each film had its own unique set of problems. But together they illustrate the unintended side-effect of their studios' desire to claim the most profitable release dates, often before there is even a completed script—the moviemaking equivalent of sending out birth announcements before you've managed to get pregnant.

"It is commonplace now for the best release dates to be taken very far in advance, which means we are choosing a date well before the movie has begun shooting," said Paramount Pictures' film group president, Adam Goodman. "When I first got into the business, it was the other way around."

Hollywood's holdups this year are having repercussions far into the future. With three movies on its 2012 release schedule pushed into 2013, Paramount recently delayed the release of its "Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles" remake from December 2013 to May 2014.

And there easily could be more delays ahead. Studios already have claimed a number of high-profile dates in 2014 for movies that are still in development, including sequels to "X-Men: First Class," "The Amazing Spider-Man" and "Transformers."

"Smurfs 2," meanwhile, is set for Aug. 2, 2013, and "Smurfs 3" already has claimed its opening date for July 24, 2015.

World War Z

Delayed: Six months to June 21

Why? Paramount has "Lost" co-creator Damon Lindelof writing a new ending after differences surfaced among such key players as star and producer Brad Pitt, director Marc Forster and executives from four different financiers.

47 Ronin

Delayed: Three months to Feb. 8

Why? Universal had difficulties with first-time feature director Carl Rinsch, and now plans to reshoot the ending and other sequences to beef up star Keanu Reeves' character.

'G.I. Joe: Retaliation'

G.I. Joe: Retaliation

Delayed: Nine months to March 29

Why? Backers decided it was worth added cost to convert the film to 3-D and consider reshoots to beef up red hot star Channing Tatum's character. The new version may revive Tatum's character, who was killed off in the original version.

Jack the Giant Killer

Delayed: Nine months to March 22

Why? Afraid of competing against "Snow White and the Huntsman," Warner Bros. pushed director Bryan Singer's revisionist take on the fairy tale and since has done reshoots.

WILDE SUMMER?

Not quite—but stars of 'Relaxious' are expected to film in Chicago

ABOUT LAST NIGHT

Luis Gomez

» lgomez@tribune.com
 » aboutluisgomez

You could count on at least one high-profile Hollywood film shooting in the Chicago area the past few summers, from "Public Enemies" in 2008 and "A Nightmare on Elm Street" in 2009 to "Transformers: Dark of the Moon" and "The Dilemma" in 2010 and "Man of Steel" in 2011.

This summer?

It had been reported in March that the Chicago-set comedy "Relaxious"—which revolves around an agoraphobic man (Jason Sudeikis) and a woman with an anxiety disorder (Olivia Wilde) who talk over the phone about dates they would go on if not for their fears—would film in the city this summer. Chicago Film Office director

Rich Moskal also saw the report but said he has yet to speak with anyone from the film.

Reached by email Friday, "Relaxious" director and Park Ridge native Christopher Storer wrote that he still planned to shoot the film in Chicago, just not this summer. "[We're] just in the process of locking down exact dates," he wrote.

The movie also is set to star "Saturday Night Live" cast member Fred Armisen and "21 Jump Street" actress Brie Larson.

Wilde and Larson recently were cast in the indie comedy "Squirrel to the Nuts," which could begin shooting in the fall. Sudeikis, who it is rumored will not return to "Saturday Night Live" next season, is set to play a pot dealer in "We're the Millers," which is scheduled to begin filming this month in North Carolina.

» For more celeb news from Chicago, go to chicagotribune.com/luis.

ALSO SPOTTED ...

» Kristin Chenoweth was spotted June 29 at Roof in The Wit hotel.

» Michael Jordan hung out Saturday with former Bulls teammate Charles Oakley at Paris Club's upstairs lounge, Studio Paris.

» The Decemberists rocker Chris Funk dined June 28 at Nellcote.

» Vince Vaughn watched the Kicks for a Cure kick-ball tournament, hosted by former Bear and current Carolina Panther Greg Olsen, on June 30 in Grant Park.

This week

Pauly D will promote his Remix cocktail line at Binny's in the South Loop on Saturday before DJing at V Live in Logan Square.

Jason Sudeikis and Olivia Wilde

» John Cusack ordered tacos and guacamole at Mercadito in the early hours of July 2.

» The L.A. Galaxy's Landen Donovan dined at Tavermita in River North on Saturday while in town to face the Fire.

» Kiernan Shipka, who plays Sally Draper on "Mad Men," dined July 1 at Japonais.

'Shameless' is back

"Relaxious" won't film in Chicago this summer, but Showtime's "Shameless" will. The dysfunctional family series starring William H. Macy and Emmy Rossum will return in late August to film exterior scenes for the show's third season (interior scenes are filmed in the L.A. area). Expect to see the cast and crew in Lawndale, where the Gallagher house is located.

THE DIGIT

80 MPH

That's how fast Justin Bieber admitted driving when he was stopped and cited on an L.A. freeway Friday, according to latimes.com. The singer might have been trying to elude paparazzi, the newspaper reports.

Eat my shorts

Don't have a cow, man, but “The Simpsons” is headed back to the big screen this weekend. It won't be a follow-up to 2007's “The Simpsons Movie.” Rather, Matt Groening's yellow family is starring in the short “The Longest Daycare,” playing in front of the Fox animated feature “Ice Age: Continental Drift.”

Super Spidey

Hordes of moviegoers were bitten by the “Spider-Man” bug this weekend. “The Amazing Spider-Man” debuted in the U.S. on Tuesday and grossed a healthy $140 million during its first six days in North American theaters, according to an estimate from Sony Pictures. Meanwhile, the studio also announced the new “Spider-Man” is the first in a trilogy.

Baby on board

There's a new celeb baby: Sienna Miller and Tom Sturridge have welcomed their first child, usmagazine.com reports. The engaged British actors are keeping the baby's gender, name and weight to themselves. Our advice: Steer clear of the names Suri and Blue Ivy.
